NOTE FROM NATHAN

I consider that our present sufferings are not worth comparing with the glory that will be revealed in us. The creation waits in eager expectation for the sons of God to be revealed. For the creation was subjected to frustration, not by its own choice, but by the will of the one who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself will be liberated from its bondage to decay and brought into the glorious freedom of the children of God.

Romans 8:18-21 (NIV, 1984)

The recent death of our family dog, Coco, has raised a question I've been asked before: Do our pets go to heaven when they die? The shortest and simplest answer is, the Bible does not say. But, I think we have much more hope than that.

First of all, the final goal of the Christian faith is not for a person to go to heaven, but for the kingdom of heaven to come and fill all of God's creation, as He makes all things new. When we pray, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," we are praying for this final reality. This is the "renewal of all things" Jesus describes (Mt. 19:28).

What happens to the deceased Christian in the meantime? Jesus says, "I am the resurrection and the life. The one believing in me will live, even if you die, and everyone living and believing in me will never ever die in the age to come" (Jn. 11:25-26). He told the disciples He was preparing dwelling places for us in Father's household, that we might be with Him (Jn. 14:2-3). To the repentant thief on the cross, Jesus said, "Today, you will be with me in Paradise" (Lk. 23:43).

The Apostle Paul writes about being "apart from the body" but "at home with the Lord" (2 Cor. 5:8). He desires to depart and be with Christ, which is better by far (Phil. 1:23). We have glimpses in the New Testament of deceased witnesses who are apparently still speaking, interceding, and even cheering us on (Heb. 11:12; Rev. 6:9-11).

All of that is what we refer to when we talk about Christians "going to heaven" when we die. We have a legitimate hope, a sincere expectation, of being in the presence of Jesus upon our death. If we are already alive to God in Christ (Rom. 6:11) and seated with Christ in the heavenly realms (Eph. 2:6), we certainly will not cease to be so when our bodies physically die. But, as wonderful as that is, that is not the end of the story.

King Jesus is going to pay us another visit. God will bring with Jesus all those who have "fallen asleep" in Him. The dead in Christ will be raised, and then we who are living. Perishable will be clothed with imperishable, and we'll all sing together, "Where, O Death, is now thy victory?" (1 Thess. 4:13-18; 1 Cor. 15:23, 51-55).

When the children of God are revealed in our redeemed, resurrection bodies, all of creation will be set free (Rom. 8:18-25). There's the good news for our pets. God is making all things new (Rev. 21:1-5). The result will be complete peace and joy among all of God's transformed creation (Isa. 11:6-9; 55:12-13; 65:17-19). Everything in heaven and on earth will finally be brought together under the headship of Christ (Eph. 1:10). The earth will be full of the Lord's glory (Hab. 2:14).

Therefore, God's promises offer a great deal of good news, not just for individual believers and the community of faith, but for the whole of creation. The Lord who cares about the livestock of Nineveh (Jon. 4:11), who feeds the birds and clothes the flowers (Mt. 6:26, 30), has a heart for all of His creation, and He promises to heal it.

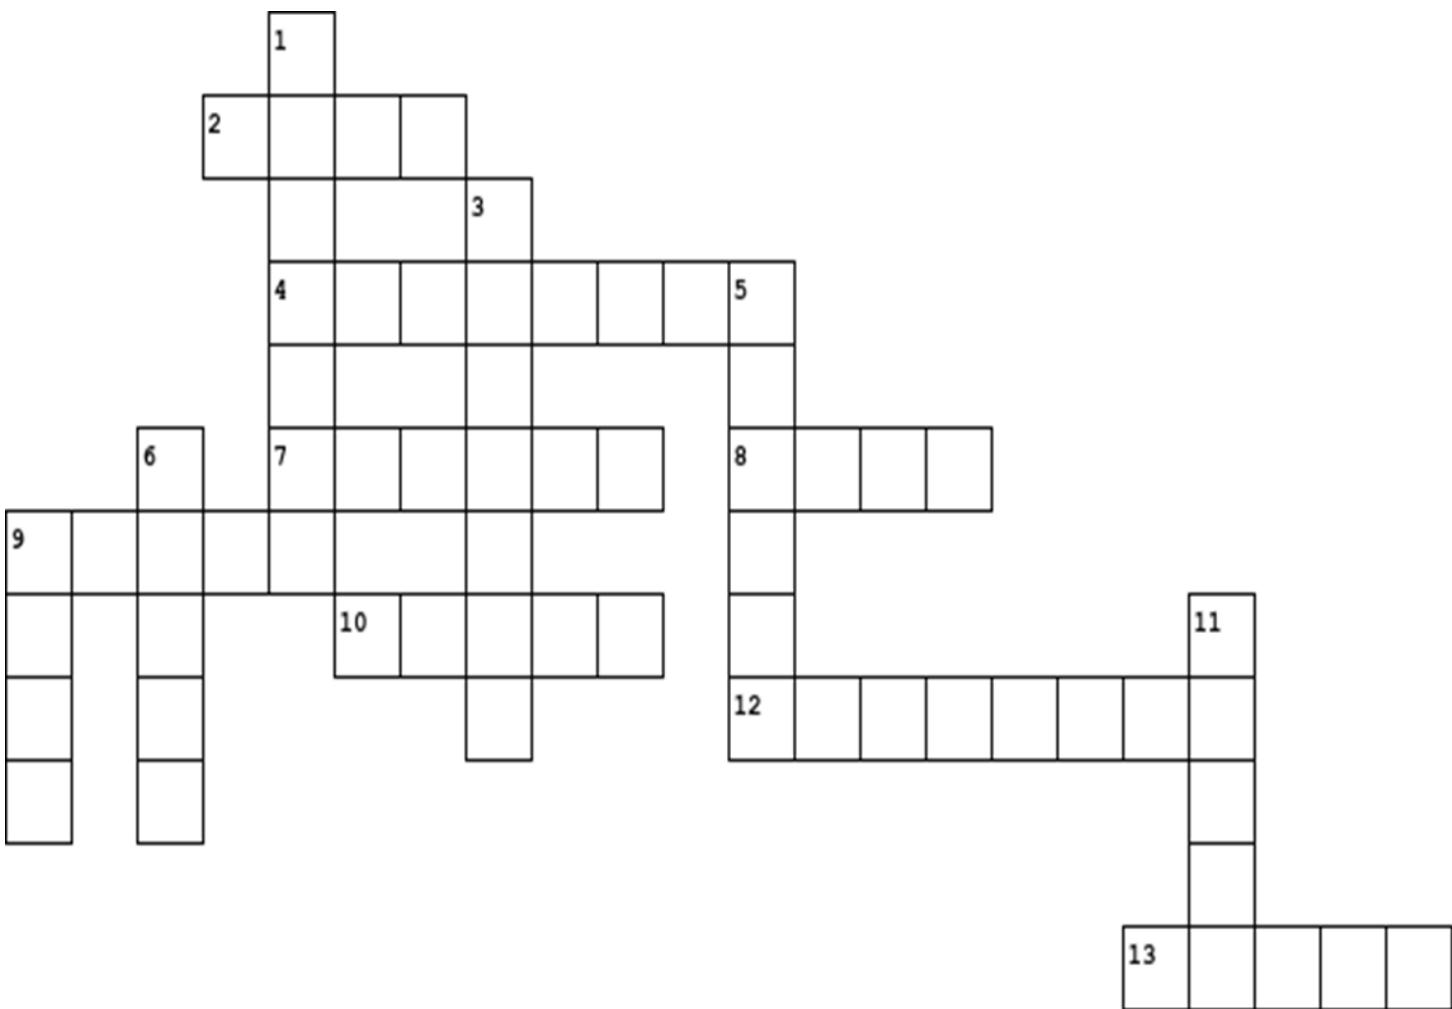

That is the good news for all critters who have wrongly suffered and died in this world. Creation is currently groaning, longing to be healed from a bondage that is not its fault. On the day that the Lord visits us and heals the bodies of His people, He will also set His creation free. That is what the Bible teaches.

Where are our pets located right now? What is the conscious experience of our pets right now? The Bible does not address these questions. But, the world to come will be unspeakably better than our present world. A world without our pets would not be as good as a world with our pets. But, a world in which our pets are alive and no longer plagued by injury or disease would be even better, still. When the Bible speaks of "new creation," it envisions that best possible world. Creation will be entirely healed. Anything else would fall short of the compassion, love, and justice of King Jesus.

Grace and peace,
Nathan
